Wow, I have never seen so many maples. As a certified arborist, good tree stock is nearly impossible to come by until you visit Momiji. Their tree stock is the best I've found and they are the only nursery I will buy from with confidence that I'm getting a quality stock. They have the biggest selection of varieties in all sizes and all are well cultivated. It's clear that they are grown by people that really know and love their plants. They are the best trees in the Bay Area, and their excellent quality and incredible service are more than worth the drive from where we are in Martinez.

One of the very best growers of Japanese Maples in California. Sachi and Mike are masters of their craft. Don't settle for 'balled and burlapped' trees from Oregon, or the undistinguished trees from other 'industrial grade' nurseries. Momiji's trees are acclimated for our area, and each tree is grafted and grown diligently in the nursery. They have a vast selection of all sizes and varieties, and very reasonable prices. A tree from Momiji is more than just a pretty specimen—it will be a 'member of the family' for decades to come. With nearly thirty years experience in landscaping, I can attest that there are few growers as dedicated and knowledgeable, and even fewer nurseries that are as welcoming to visit.
